Supporting Young People to understand the role of politics and democracy in everyday life: A one day masterclass

Wednesday 28th January 2015

The Creative Communities Unit at Staffordshire University are hosting a one day masterclass for practitioners working with young people or anyone wanting to help young people to understand how politics affects their every day life.

The masterclass is delivered in partnership with Uprising and YMCA North Staffordshire.

Details

Time: 10am to 3pm.

Venue: The Learning Exchange, Room L225, Flaxman Building, Staffordshire University, College Road, Stoke on Trent, ST4 2DE.

Cost: £100 including lunch.

The masterclass will provide helpful and accessible tools and techniques to help engage young people in discussions and activities. The topics covered during the day will include:

- How young people can make a difference by having a say in a service or organisation.
- How young people can make a difference in their local community or area.
- How young people can influence national campaigns and get involved in National Elections.
